Call for apps!

Are you making an open data based app? Apps for Europe is running an online competition to find the best app developers across the continent.

We are looking for apps that are:

- New
- Easy to use
- Orientated towards creating viable businesses and services
- Showing the world the potential of open data

You can apply now at www.appsforeurope.eu/competition. The deadline is 7th February 2014. You haven't got long!

What can you win?
Join the online competition and win 1 of the 15 exclusive spots at the International Business Lounge @Future Everything in Manchester, 31st March 2014.

You win a ticket to Future Everything and a stipend for your travel to Manchester **

You get the chance to exhibit your app to the entire Future Everything audience throughout the day, along with the other winning innovative apps from all over Europe. But that's not all! You also get the opportunity to pitch your app to an international crowd of investors, government agencies, companies and individuals keen to share their skills, experience, resources and money to help scale your app into a successful business.

Go to www.appsforeurope.eu/competition or email info@appsforeurope.eu for more information.

All online entries will be judged by our Apps for Europe partners: an experienced network of European companies with contacts, expertise and a shared agenda to transform open data into business.

Why are we doing this?
Apps for Europe wants to show the world not only the power of open data but also its economic potential. Neelie Kroes, Vice President of the European Commission, who strongly supports Apps for Europe, estimates the financial value of open data to be worth billions of euros. By helping you scale your idea into a successful business that could reach across Europe, we are progressing the potential of open data together!
